shows to the Court that by the will of said John Ragland deceased, all the property of said testator, real and personal, is bequeathed

That the debts of said estate amount to

That as executor of said will, this petitioner holds Twenty five (25) notes, from the sale of Comes the Executor of the last will and testament of John Ragland, deceased, by Hogate & Clark, his attorneys, and files a petition to postpone the sale of decedent's personal property at ~~private~~ ^{public} sale, which petition reads as follows: (The clerk will here set out petition except the caption)

And the Court having examined said petition and being fully advised, finds that the prayer of said petition ought be granted.

It is therefore ordered by the Court that the sale of decedent's personal property at public sale be postponed until the last part of September or the first part of October 1896, and that such sale shall take place on that date unless a further extension of time is hereafter made; and when said sale is made the Executor is ordered to file his sale bill forthwith.

The undersigned, Executor of the last will and testament of John Ragland deceased shows to the court that among the property of the estate are forty four hogs that will be fat and ready for market by about the 1st day of July, and that the same ought to be sold on the market at that time.
He also shows that there are twenty five acres of growing wheat which when harvested ought to be sold from the machine, and not stored.

He therefore asks an order from the court to sell said hogs, when fat, at private sale for the market price on day of sale, and also an order to sell said wheat at the market price on the day of sale.

Michael O'Donnell, the Executor of the last will and testament of John Ragland, deceased, shews to the court that he has this day filed his inventory of the personal estate of said decedent which inventory amounts to the sum of $1158.70 and consists of horses, cows, hogs, growing wheat, grain, farming implements &c. He says he believes it would be to the advantage of said estate to postpone the sale of said personal property until the last of September or the 1st of October, so that the crops now growing may better mature and become more valuable to the estate. He says he can use the work horses to advantage in raising the crops, and the whole proceeds will be needed to pay the debts of the testator. He says he is the only legatee of decedent under his will, and he believes his own interests and the interest of creditors will be best subserved by postponing the sale.

And he asks an order accordingly.
