If there is one picture in the United States that is disgraceful to this democracy it is the manner in which we have treated the most sacred institution we have, upon which our whole Government rests, and that is the public school. It is probable that not many of you know who the teacher is that teaches your children. So I say, put in your good school, your graded school, that will gather up the children of the neighborhood, and let that school be articulated with the life of the community so that the boy is not taught about Russia before he is taught about the United States. And have just one language taught in that school, and that the American language. And in that community there should be a community center—a place where the people can gather together, where they can have their own life and express themselves as they desire.—Franklin K. Lane, Secretary of the Interior, 1913-1920.
